

Identification of herbicidally active substances

Abstract

- 5 The present invention relates to a method of identifying herbicidally active compounds. The invention furthermore relates to nucleic acid constructs, to vectors comprising the nucleic acid constructs, to transgenic organisms and to their use. Moreover, the present invention relates to substances which have been identified using the abovementioned method.